1. The services and products we offer

Here is a brief summary of the services and products we offer you:

- Services:
PI provides two types of accounts discussed further in the next section. The accounts are:
  - Managed and Discretionary accounts
  - Advisory accounts

- Other Services

We offer, for an additional charge, other services related to the main products and services you use, including financial planning

- Products

We offer the following investment products:

- Cash and cash equivalents
- Fixed income or debt securities
- Equities including warrants
- Investment funds such as mutual funds
- Alternative investments such as options, income trusts, etc.
- Commodity futures, and commodity futures options
- Life, disability, and critical illness insurance, and segregated funds, through our subsidiary PI Financial Services Corp.

Your advisor can explain these investment products to you, as well as how they work, their risks and possible returns, and whether they are appropriate for you. For more information, you can also read plain-language investment explanations in Investments at a Glance, a booklet prepared by the Canadian Securities Administrators for financial consumers like you.

- New services and products

We will offer additional services and products as they are developed. You can find out about new offerings and whether they are appropriate for you by visiting our website, speaking with your advisor or reading information included with your statements or in other communications.

2. The account(s) you have and how they operate

We offer our clients one or both of two basic account types and your advisor will work with you to determine the right account(s) and best services for you.

Your account type(s), when you sign this RD, are checked off below:

- Managed and Discretionary accounts: These are also referred to as “non-advisory” or “discretionary accounts” where your advisor independently exercises his or her authority (uses his or her discretion) to make investment decisions within the framework of your overall directions.

In managed accounts, your advisor will make no recommendations to you and you make no decisions, as he or she invests on your behalf. The same is generally true for discretionary accounts, however, your advisor may sometimes make recommendations and you may on occasion wish to direct trading in the account.

- Advisory accounts: In advisory accounts, your investment advisor is responsible for providing suitable and unbiased investment recommendations to you that meet the standard of care expected of a trained investment professional based on the KYC information that you provide to us. You (and/or your authorized representative) direct(s) all trading and is(are) responsible for all investment decisions in your account(s).

3. The fees you will be paying and how they are calculated

All fees are disclosed as required by regulation and vary depending on the accounts and services you use. In many cases, for example commissions, the fees are split between PI and your advisor.

We offer you a choice of commission-based and fee-based accounts. Commissions are based on a percentage of transaction value negotiated between you and PI, whereas fees on fee-based accounts are based on a percentage of the value of your account assets. We will recommend the one that is appropriate for you based on how you expect to use the account (for example, if you expect to buy and hold securities for a long time or intend to be buying and selling more frequently), as well as your personal preferences.

Some charges are fixed – a list of these is provided when you open your account and are updated from time to time.

Other charges are negotiable and depend on the business you have built up over time with us or bring to us. In the case of negotiable charges, we need your consent.

The fees you will pay for services we provide – and these will vary depending on whether you have chosen a commission-based or a fee-based model – encompass:

Fees and charges for Managed accounts

- Managed account fees are typically calculated based on a negotiated percentage of the value of assets in your account and are charged to your account monthly. When you open a managed account, you will sign a fee agreement which will detail the agreed upon fee percentage and the method of calculation.
- In some cases, managed account fees are based on a fixed charge for each transaction (which is not split between PI and your advisor) and a negotiated percentage of the profits generated by the account (which is split between PI and your advisor.)

For more details relating to the fees payable on your Managed account, please refer to your Managed account, and Fee agreement(s).

Fees and charges for Advisory or Discretionary accounts

For a commission-based account:

- We will charge a commission on every trade we make for you. The method of calculating commissions will vary depending on the type of product involved.
- For Non-Exchange Traded Fixed Income Securities: The security is either “marked up” in the case of a purchase order or “marked down” in the case of a sell order. In either case, your confirmation slip will show the net price, and in the case of purchase orders will show the yield to maturity you will receive on the security. The amount of the mark up or mark down is available on request.
- For Equity Securities, Exchange-traded Fixed Income Securities, Equities Options, Commodities Futures, and Commodities Futures Options: Each transaction will be charged a negotiated commission plus certain costs of the transaction, including ticket charges or exchange fees) at the time of the transaction. The commission payable will either be a flat dollar value or a percentage of the dollar value of the transaction.
- For Mutual Funds: You will pay commissions on mutual funds according to the product and options selected by you at the time of purchase. Mutual fund transactions will fall into no load, low load, front-end load, and back-end load (also called deferred sales charge or DSC funds) types. Mutual fund sales charge options, and fees are described in more detail as follows:

- No Load: You will pay no commission to either the fund company, or PI, at the time of purchase.
- Low Load: You will be charged a lower commission at the time of purchase. If the fund is sold within a stipulated amount of time (redemption), you will be charged a fee by the fund company which will be deducted from the total proceeds of your redemption. The amount of time the fund must be held and the fee payable on redemption are specified in the prospectus for the fund and your investment advisor will be able to provide you with more detail.
- Front-end Load: You will be charged a negotiated commission at the time of the purchase, and will either be a flat dollar value or a percentage of the dollar value of the transaction. No commission is charged at the time of sale of these funds.
- Deferred Sales Charge (DSC) or Back-end Load: You will be charged no commission at the time of purchase, however a commissions is paid directly by the fund company to your investment advisor. If the fund is sold within a stipulated amount of time (redemption), you will be charged a fee, designed to discourage early withdrawals. The amount of time the fund must be held and the fee payable by you on redemption are specified in the prospectus for the fund and your investment advisor will be able to provide you with more detail.
- Management Expense Ratio (MER): Mutual fund managers also charge a percentage fee (MER) by deducting charges from fund performance. From the MER, fund managers pay us trailing fees for ongoing services we provide to you. The exception to this is “F Class” mutual funds that do not pay trailer fees. Managed accounts are required by PI to purchase “F Class” mutual funds.
- Short Term Trading Fees and Switch Fees: Are charged by the fund company if you sell or switch your mutual fund within a certain period of time, as set out in the prospectus. You may be charged a short-term trading fee or switch fee of up to 2% of the amount you sell or switch. These fees are paid directly to the fund company, not to PI. In some cases, you may be permitted to transfer your mutual funds to another within the same fund family at no cost. Please speak with your advisor for more details.
- For commission-based advisory and discretionary accounts, we may also charge other account operation fees, which can include exchange fees, account transfer fees, account inactivity fees, wire transfer fees, third-party custodian fees, costs of account closing, registered plan account administration fees, etc. These fees are listed on the Client Fee Schedule that you will receive with your account opening package and will change from time-to-time. Most clients will be unaffected by these fees as they are mainly for non-standard transactions. Your investment advisor will be able to provide you with the most recent version of the Fee Schedule upon request.

□ For a fee-based account:

- Fee-based advisory and discretionary account fees are calculated based on a negotiated percentage of the value of assets in your account and are charged to your account monthly. When you open a fee-based account, you will sign a fee agreement which will detail the agreed upon fee percentage and the method of calculation.
- In addition to the periodic fee, your fee agreement will also specify the maximum number of trades. If this number is exceeded, commissions will be charged for any additional trades.
- For fee-based advisory and discretionary accounts, we may also charge other account operation fees, which can include exchange fees, account transfer fees, wire transfer fees, costs of account closing, registered plan account administration fees, etc. These fees are listed on the Fee Schedule that you will receive with your account opening package and will change from time-to-time. Most clients will be unaffected by these fees as they are mainly for non-standard transactions. Your investment advisor will be able to provide you with the most recent version of the Fee Schedule upon request.

• Other fees and charges

- You will pay fees for products or services you buy through us (for example, insurance-related companies can provide products that complement the investments or services we provide directly).
- You also may be subject to other costs relating to services that you use that are not our service offerings. For example, there may be charges levied by third parties for services that help you save more quickly and securely such as for pre-authorized transfers. There may be penalties related to the early withdrawal from, or encashment of, certain instruments. Also, if you own shares of small emerging companies, you may be required to pay for valuations of these holdings to satisfy Canada Revenue Agency requirements. Knowing about and planning for these costs are your responsibility.
- If you make a trade involving a security or make a transfer, withdrawal or deposit of funds which is denominated in a currency other than the currency of the account in which the trade, transfer, withdrawal or deposit is to settle, a conversion of currency might be required. In all such transaction and at any time of conversion of funds is made, PI and the parties we conduct business with will earn revenue based on the applicable market bid and ask rates for the currency. If a currency conversion is required, it will take place at the rate established by PI. Contact your investment advisor for more information.
- Notice of price changes: We will provide you with at least 60 days' written notice of any new fee or changes in charges. Interest charged on accounts and commissions for executing trades are excluded from notice – interest will be reflected on your client account statements and commissions will be reflected on your trade confirmation slips.
- Pre-trade disclosure of fees and charges: In addition to providing you with advance notice of the prices of the services you use, for non-managed accounts the charges specific to your transactions will be disclosed to you prior to any transaction we conduct for you. This may take place in a verbal or written communication with you regarding establishing a practice for all transaction charges or in a verbal or written communication with you regarding an individual transaction.

4. How we will assess the suitability of an investment when making recommendations to you

The suitability factors that guide us in our decision as to an investment’s suitability include what we understand to be your current:

1. Financial situation: What financial assets (deposits, investments) and liabilities (debt, mortgage) you have and the sources and amount of your income – we will consider the size of any transaction compared to the overall value of your net financial assets (assets minus liabilities).
2. Investment knowledge: Whether you consider yourself, or we understand you, to be a novice at investing, have some knowledge or feel you understand some of the new more complex financial products.
3. Investment objectives: What you tell us are your specific financial goals; this will help us determine how to balance the desire to keep your money safe (not lose principal), earn income, and increase your capital through growth in the market value of your holdings/account.
4. Time horizon: When you expect to need your financial assets, for example, to buy a house, pay for education or enter retirement – in retirement, this may also include consideration of tax requirements to withdraw minimum amounts.
5. Risk tolerance: Whether, even if you have many years to earn and save, you feel comfortable with the possibility of losing money in some years.

These factors make up our knowledge of your situation and goals and are also called “Know-Your-Client” (KYC) information. Our understanding of your KYC profile is critical. Some of the above factors are relatively easily answered with a “yes” or “no” or a number, however, some are more complex, particularly your investment knowledge, investment objectives, time horizon, and risk tolerance.

(Initial)

One of your most important responsibilities is to ensure that the KYC information you provide to PI on your CIF is accurate and complete. We rely on the CIF document to ensure that your investments are suitable and errors or incomplete information will affect our decision making.

Risk and reward are inversely proportional. The combination of these factors that make up your KYC profile will help us suggest the allocation of your holdings between, for example:

- registered (tax-advantaged) and non-registered accounts;
- debt, equity, mutual fund and other instruments;
- Canadian and foreign investments;
- whether to borrow to invest rather than paying in cash only;
- terms of specific instruments; and
- individual securities and the combination of securities in your portfolio.

For specific types of accounts:

- Managed and Discretionary accounts: A discussion with you about the suitability for you of individual investments is not required as your account will be managed according to the KYC information on your CIF and your Investment Policy Statement (for managed accounts). Ongoing suitability is provided as part of the managed account services generally according to the process discussed below.
- Advisory accounts: Before we provide you with recommendations as to which investments to purchase, or if you ask us to buy or sell a security, we will first determine if we believe that investment is suitable for you according to our understanding of the KYC information you have given us when you completed the CIF. That is why keeping your CIF up-to-date and accurate is very important. We know many people are concerned about sharing some of this information, even with their investment advisors, however, without all the necessary information, we may not be able to determine whether a transaction for your account is suitable for you in the context of your overall portfolio. Even in cases where you provide us with unsolicited instructions, we may advise against proceeding with the order or refuse to execute the instructions.

Below we provide a summary of the procedures we use to help you understand how we bring all the information you provide to us into decisions as to what investments to recommend to you.

Suitability process:

We use a three-step approach to determine if an investment is suitable for you.

1. Based on discussion with you and your answers on the CIF, we determine whether you are a risk-averse client, somewhat risk-tolerant or can accept higher losses in the search for higher gains.
2. We rate investments as low, medium or high risk. For example, a GIC is generally low risk whereas investing in junior mining or oil and gas equities may be very high risk.
3. We may, or you may wish us to, consider other relevant factors, for example:
  - Managed and Discretionary accounts: If you want predominantly socially responsible investments or wish to avoid investment in firms whose products are alcohol, tobacco, pornography, gambling, guns, and chemical, biological or nuclear weapons.
  - Advisory accounts: If you are risk-averse, but have a reasonable amount of financial assets and you want to invest a small amount of your overall account in a new issue of a start-up company run by someone you know and whose business acumen you respect, we would tell you that while the specific investment may not be suitable for you, it might be acceptable if you can “afford” to lose some money, even that entire investment.

If, when you place an unsolicited order that appears unsuitable and not consistent with what your profile suggests to us, we will advise against proceeding with the order, or may ask you to provide more information in order for us to proceed.

The suitability requirement applies to client who trade in commodity futures and commodity futures options, however it applies in the context of the “risk capital” for those accounts which are designated by their holders as “speculative” (meaning those accounts which are not held by bona fide hedgers). Because of the inherent high risk associated with trading in commodity futures and commodity futures options, suitability for these accounts is assessed almost exclusively in terms of your stated “risk capital available for futures trading” which refers to the absolute dollar amount threshold a client is prepared to place at risk with trading commodity futures and commodity futures options. Your age, financial circumstances, investment experience and knowledge, and risk tolerance will, however, be factors PI will take into account whether your “risk capital available for futures trading” is a suitable amount.

Suitability review timing:

When (1) accepting each of your orders or (2) recommending a security or strategy to you, we will review each order or strategy in the context of the five KYC suitability factors described above.

We will also conduct a suitability determination when:

1. Securities are deposited or transferred to your account/(s); and/or
2. The advisor or portfolio manager responsible for the account changes; and/or
3. You make us aware that there has been a material change in your personal or financial circumstances or objectives.

_____
Agreed &
Accepted
(Initial)

If during the suitability determination we identify any concerns, we will discuss them with you and may be required by our regulators or good business practice to document our discussions. If we are strongly concerned, we may refuse to execute a transaction or may terminate an account relationship.

To ensure that the position(s) held in your account or accounts is/are suitable for you as time passes, we will review the suitability of the investments in your account(s) and your holdings when required due to one of the reasons described above.

Given the long-term nature of investing for most clients, we do not automatically review the suitability of the investments in your account(s) when there are market fluctuations, even large fluctuations. Your advisor is ready to discuss the effect of market fluctuations on your portfolio with you upon request. We encourage you to speak with your advisor, especially if you expect to need to convert your assets to cash in the near future (for example, for a major purchase such as a house), if you wish to retire, and in the case of other major changes to your KYC profile.

5. The ways we will avoid, manage or disclose conflicts of interest that may arise as we serve your and others' interests

Actual, potential and perceived conflicts of interest arise where an action or decision by someone has the effect of benefiting others at that person's expense. Such conflicts exist in almost all human interactions and, as we are an intermediary acting for both buyers and sellers, conflicts will arise from time to time:

- Between you and our firm, as well as between you and your advisor
- Between you and our other clients: we act for many clients and must allocate investment opportunities among all of them fairly, so as not to favour intentionally one client over another
- Between us and our related or associated companies.

The types of conflicts of interest that may exist can differ between account types. To help you understand and assess material potential and actual conflicts of interest, we have prepared a more detailed explanation of typical conflicts, with examples of what we do in the case of material conflicts. Our Conflicts of Interest Disclosure brochure is included in your new client package and can be obtained from your investment advisor upon request.

In general, we have policies and procedures in place to address the handling of conflicts of interest, for example:

- We avoid conflicts prohibited by law as well as conflicts that we cannot effectively control.

In situations that we do not or cannot avoid, where our interests may compete with yours, your interest is always given priority by our acting in one of two ways:

- We control or manage acceptable conflicts by physically separating different business functions, restricting the internal exchange of information in person or through systems, reducing the possibility of one part of our organization unsuitably influencing another, removing the financial incentive of an employee to favour a particular product or service over another that may be more suitable, and setting up and testing our operational review and approval processes.
- We disclose information about any remaining conflicts to you so that, when you evaluate our recommendations and actions, you can assess independently if conflicts are significant for you.

If you ever have any questions or concerns, whether they involve conflicts of interest or anything else, please ask your advisor for an explanation and more information.

6. The reports we will provide to help you monitor your financial assets and their performance, as well as the fees and charges you pay

Confirmation slips: We provide you with written confirmation, by mail (or by other means such as email notification), sent no more than two days after the transaction, of the details of every purchase, or sale transaction or other relevant transaction details. Please look for and review your confirmation as soon as you receive it or it is available online.

Account statements: You will receive brokerage statements directly from us on a monthly or quarterly basis, which provide your official statement of account. You may also sign up to receive electronic account statements on our website www.pifinancial.com. Your account statement confirms all account activity, including purchases and sales of securities or commodities, contributions and withdrawals, dividends, interest earned and paid, transfers, and any other transactions that occurred in your account over the previous period.

Note: These statements also list your current holdings and the net value of your portfolio as of the date on the statement. The value of most securities you hold is calculated based on the last quoted bid price of the security. In the case of securities that have ceased trading, or where the company is bankrupt, the price will be listed as having nil value. Commodities futures contract valuation is based on the daily exchange closing price.

In the instance of some non-trading securities and securities of private corporations, we may value the securities at the original purchase price or require an opinion as to valuation. We will generally not change the valuation of these securities over time, unless we are provided with evidence that the valuation has changed.

PI does its utmost to avoid errors, however, misunderstandings and mistakes can happen. PI is responsible for properly processing your transactions and for safeguarding your assets under our control.

You are responsible for reading all documents provided to you by PI, such as confirmation slips and account statements, and are responsible for notifying us of any errors, omissions or unauthorized transactions. Failure to notify us may affect any legal claim you have and will make resolution of any problems more difficult.

For securities in your accounts, clients must notify PI within 45 days if you see any transactions that you do not recall or identify any errors.

Due to the high degree of volatility of commodities futures contracts clients must notify PI within 48 hours if you see any transactions that you do not recall or identify any errors.

Account Performance: Your investment advisor has the ability to provide you, on request, with reports indicating account performance. Please note that you may earn more or less than others may have made on the same investments or that you may read in market commentary due to differences in when you buy and sell securities.

Performance Benchmarks: Investment performance benchmarks are a standard against which the performance of an individual security or a group of securities is measured. For example, the average annual performance of a class of securities over time is a benchmark against which current performance of members of that class and the class itself is measured.

A benchmark is usually an index of securities of the same or similar class. For example, small-cap or mid-cap securities may be benchmarked against indexes of small-cap or mid-cap securities. Stocks are usually compared against stock indexes; bonds against bond indexes, etc. Another type of benchmark considers securities relative to their industry: for example a telecommunications stock may be compared to indexes of telecommunications stocks.

PI will make performance benchmark information available to clients on request.

Fees and charges paid: Fees are reflected on your statements and/or you are advised of fees or methods of compensation.

Future reporting enhancements: We regularly look at ways to improve the reporting and documents we provide to you to make them more informative, clearer and useful for you and other clients. As part of our service commitment, we will keep you posted on the timing of changes and how to understand new report formats. For updated information at any time, please ask your investment advisor.

Off Book Holdings: If any of the investment you have purchased through PI are not held at PI, they are referred to as “off book holdings”. For example, mutual funds may not be held at PI because the mutual fund company that issued the fund holds that investment for you. Your ownership of these mutual funds will not be reflected in PI’s account records but rather in the mutual fund company’s account records. If you purchase an “off book” investment through PI, you will receive a trade confirmation for that initial purchase and your account statement will reflect the initial purchase.

7. How we handle client complaints

We hope to enjoy a long and mutually successful relationship with you and look forward to serving you, your family and any people you may refer to us.

We believe that open communication is the best way to achieve this, however, misunderstandings can arise and mistakes can occur. If you have complaints (or compliments), please let us know. You will be provided with a copy of the IIROC Brochure - An Investors Guide to making a Complaint at the time of account opening, but it is useful to provide a general description of how we handle complaints.

Complaint-handling procedures: PI Financial Corp. strives to provide the best possible service levels to our clients and we will strive to deal with every complaint fully, objectively, and professionally. When a review of a client complaint reveals that our firm, or one of our representatives, is at fault, we will deal fairly and honestly with you in our efforts to reach a mutually acceptable conclusion.

In order to assist you in bringing any complaint to our attention, you may wish to first consider the nature of the complaint.

For example, if you have a complaint related to service or administrative error, we encourage you to first speak with your investment advisor to see if it can be resolved quickly and easily. If your investment advisor is unable to resolve your concerns, you should contact:

Vice President Sales

PI Financial Corp.
1900-666 Burrard Street
Vancouver, BC. V6C 3N1
Tel: (604) 718-7502 Fax: (604) 664-664-2666

On the other hand, if you have concerns about potentially improper activity (such as unauthorized trading, improper or unethical sales practices, unsuitable investment recommendations, or excessive trading activity), that may or may not involve your investment advisor, you should contact our firm's Designated Complaints Officer immediately:

Chief Compliance Officer

1900-666 Burrard Street
Vancouver, BC. V6C 3N1
Tel: (604) 664-3617 Fax: (604) 664-2686

In any case, either of the above officers of our firm will be able to make a determination as to who will be the best person in our firm to look into your concerns.
